Workshop

Students Carole Crane, Jeanne Ernst, Connie Steenbock, Juanita Olsen, Nannette Smith, Bev Engler, and Mary Gast.

North Scott's workshop, which has been in existence since 1959, is designed to aid teachers in getting their class materials typed and assembled. Various machines, such as the mimeograph, duplicator, collator, and electric typewriters aid in this production.

The class is made up of senior girls participating in secretarial practice and general office practice. In addition to gaining marketable skills in this "on the job" situation, each participating girl receives one fourth of an academic credit.

Purpose of Farm Bureau

Farm Bureau is a free, independent, non-governmental, voluntary organization of farm and ranch families united for the purpose of analyzing their problems and formulating action to achieve educational improvement, economic opportunity, and social advancement, thereby promoting the national welfare. Farm Bureau is local, national, and international in its scope and influence, and is non-partisan, nonsectarian, and non-secret in character.

What Is The Farm Bureau?

Farm Bureau is an organization of, by, and for the farmers. This voluntary organization of farm families in all types of agriculture is financed and controlled by its members. It is anchored on the farms of America, organized on the community, county, state and national levels.

Farm Bureau, often referred to as "The Voice of Agriculture," is interested in everything involving the welfare of farmers and their families. It is an organization that unites farmers for common causes in the protection and advancement of agriculture.

Farmers joining hands with each other in Farm Bureau work to solve problems in their community, and at the same time help to mold state and national policies through their county, state, and national organization.
